Biography

Siena Cianza is a multidisciplinary, movement-based performance artist and choreographer based in Amsterdam, active within the Dutch performing arts field. Their work explores identity, perception, and embodied experience through immersive, world-building environments that blur reality and imagination. They see movement as both ritual and architecture, shaping sensorial spaces audiences are invited to enter. Research grounds their process; through somatic practices, field recordings, and speculative thinking, they develop physical languages and poetic worlds that cultivate presence and intimacy. Collaboration is central to their practice; they work across disciplines, composing original soundscapes and partnering with sound designers and visual artists. Currently developing Season of the Magpies, their work has been supported by platforms like Frascati Theatre (Come Together Festival) and Theater De Dijk.
